SCENE OBSERVATIONS

DATE: Wednesday, December 12, 2001.

LOCATION: 254 Fonderlac Drive, Howland, Ohio

APPROXIMATE TIME OF ARRIVAL: Approximately 12:45 a.m.

POLICE AGENCY: Howland Police Department.

LEAD INVESTIGATOR: Detective Paul ~~Morrison~~ Monroe 1/4/2002 hmc

INITIAL INFORMATION:

According to police, this individual's wife returned home shortly before midnight. She was somewhat startled because when she pushed the garage door opener to open the garage door instead of opening, the garage door then closed and the light went on.

She subsequently pulled into the garage and found her husband unresponsive in the kitchen by the doorway that connects the kitchen and garage. The authorities were subsequently notified.

OBSERVATION OF THE SURROUNDINGS:

As we enter through the front main door of the residence, we immediately make a left-hand turn and enter into a dining room area. The dining room area is essentially unremarkable except for the fact that as we stand with our backs to the living room area there is a glass table in the dining room which has on the far left-hand corner a large platter or plate containing rolling papers as well as a green, leafy substance. The dining room is otherwise unremarkable.

We enter into the kitchen.

The kitchen consists of a white, tile floor with the tiles being 8-inch squares. As we stand with our backs to the dining room and facing the kitchen, to our right-hand side is a doorway leading to the family room, to our left-hand side is the refrigerator and kitchen counter. In front of us to our left-hand side is more kitchen counter where, in front of us to the right-hand side, is a doorway leading to the garage. The doorway leading to the garage is separated from the rest of the kitchen area by a small island. cursory examination of the kitchen reveals it to be rather untidy but essentially unremarkable.

As we observe the door which leads to the garage, we notice a red vehicle.

FINGERHUT, Robert S.

There is one step down from the kitchen through the door leading to the garage. As we stand at the doorway, to our right-hand side we notice a door which opens inward and is open. To our left-hand side is the body of the decedent.

As we examine the one step down to our right-hand side is what appears to be a bloody footprint. To our left-hand side is a revolver.

Cursory examination of the revolver does not reveal any spent casings within the revolver or any firing pin impressions upon any of the cartridges.

OBSERVATION OF THE VICTIM:

The victim is lying face-down in a pool of blood. He is somewhat wedged or up against the counter which separates the entrance way to the garage from the rest of the kitchen. His head appears to be resting on a pair of boots. On top of the boots is what appears to be a lottery ticket receipt. The wall directly in front of the victim has blood spatter.

In addition, there is blood spatter on the left-hand cabinet, as well.

Wedged in between the victim's left-hand side and the kitchen counter by his hand is an unopened bag of chips. By his left leg there is an insulated, large, plastic, drinking type cup. His left foot is adjacent to a case of Pepsi, upon which is a water bottle on top. His right foot is wedged against an open case of dog food. By his right foot, in addition, there is a mat which appears to be somewhat crumpled or wrinkled.

As we examine the entrance way leading to the garage, there appears to be two to three footprints, as well as blood smears.

The victim is dressed in white Reebok sneakers, blue jeans, a Cincinnati Reds jacket which appears to have at least one or two perforations, a white striped baseball shirt which also has a perforation, a red type T-shirt as well as a black type T-shirt. Cursory examination of the individual reveals a medium-sized, nearly pristine, lead and copper-colored, semi-jacketed projectile in between the skin and the black shirt. The projectile is turned over to law enforcement at the scene.

Examination of the body reveals the individual to be tepid to slightly warm. The body is going into rigor mortis, which is broken with ease.

Cursory examination reveals what appears to be a graze wound involving the back, an entrance type wound involving the posterior aspect of the right arm and shoulder, an exit wound on the right chest, a gunshot wound to the head, as well as a gunshot wound of the webbing in between the left index finger and left forefinger.

Visual observations of the surroundings reveal that there appears to be a perforation in the drywall in a direct line from the garage door above the stairs leading to the basement.

The remainder of the house is essentially unremarkable.

EVIDENCE OF INJURY

There is evidence of:

1. Gunshot wounds.
2. Lacerations.
3. Abrasions.
4. Contusions.

1. EVIDENCE OF GUNSHOT WOUNDS:

There are multiple gunshot wounds.

Gunshot Wound A:

Gunshot wound A is a penetrating gunshot wound of the head.

The wound of entrance involves the left parietal scalp and consists of an irregular, ragged, star-shaped, 2 inch by 2 inch by 2 inch laceration.

Careful examination of the underlying soft tissues does not reveal any obvious evidence of soot deposition.

There is no evidence of abrasion ring.

The wound itself is situated 1/4 inch below the vertex of the scalp and 2 inches to the left of the anterior midline.

The wound tract then continues downward through the soft tissue and musculature of the left parietal scalp and enters the calvarium via the left parietal bone through a 5/8 inch by 1/2 inch, oval, anterior-posterior defect with internal beveling anteriorly and external beveling posteriorly. The wound tract then continues downward through the parenchyma of the left parietal lobe of the brain, where it terminates at the level of the third ventricle just lateral to the left side of the third ventricle, from which a medium-sized, partially deformed, lead and copper-colored projectile is recovered.

The overall wound pathway of gunshot wound A is downward with little, if any, right-to-left or anterior-posterior deviation.

Accompanying gunshot wound A are multiple fractures involving the left parietal bone, left anterior cranial fossa and the medial aspects of the right and left posterior cranial fossa.

FINGERHUT, Robert S.

In addition there are focal contusions involving the anterior, inferior aspect of the left frontal lobe of the brain, as well as the left basal ganglia.

Gunshot Wound B:

Gunshot wound B is a perforating gunshot wound of the back and chest.

The wound of entrance is situated on the posterior aspect of the right arm and right shoulder.

The wound of entrance consists of a 1/4 inch, round perforation situated within a nearly circumferential, 1/8 inch by 1/16 inch abrasion ring.

The wound itself is also situated within a 1/2 inch, nearly circumferential area of purple ecchymosis.

There is no evidence of stippling.

Gunshot wound B is situated 3 1/2 inches below the right shoulder and 9 3/4 inches to the right of the posterior midline.

Gunshot wound B then penetrates the soft tissue and musculature of the right side of the chest, without penetrating or perforating the right chest cavity or without rib fracture, and exits on the anterior aspect of the right side of the chest.

The wound of exit for gunshot wound B is situated on the upper, medial, right chest and consists of a 5/8 inch by 1/4 inch, oblique (4 o'clock to 10 o'clock), slit-like perforation which is situated within a 3 inch by 2 3/4 inch purple contusion.

There is no evidence of abrasion ring or stippling.

The exit wound for gunshot wound B is situated 5 3/4 inches below the right shoulder and 2 1/2 inches to the right of the anterior midline.

Projectiles or fragments are not recovered from the wound pathway of gunshot wound B.

The overall wound pathway of gunshot wound B is right-to-left, back-to-front and downward.

Gunshot Wound C:

Gunshot wound C is a graze wound of the back.

01-200

FINGERHUT, Robert S.

The wound itself is situated in the right, upper, mid back and consists of a 2 inch by 3/16 inch by 1/16 inch, oblique (7 o'clock to 2 o'clock), graze wound which is situated within a 2 1/2 inch by 5/8 inch area of purple ecchymosis. Examination of the wound itself reveals numerous skin tags which point superiorly and anteriorly.

The overall wound pathway of gunshot wound C is right-to-left, downward and tangential.

2. EVIDENCE OF LACERATIONS:

The webbing in between the left thumb and left index finger has a 1 inch by 1 1/4 inch, irregularly shaped and ragged laceration with exposure of underlying soft tissue and musculature. Careful exploration of the underlying soft tissues does not reveal any evidence of soot.

The upper, outer, right forehead has a 3/4 inch by less than 1/16 inch, oblique (8 o'clock to 2 o'clock) laceration which is situated 2 inches below the vertex of the scalp and 1 3/4 inches to the right of the anterior midline.

The inferior aspect of the right forehead, in line with the right eyebrow, has a transversely oriented, 1/4 inch by less than 1/16 inch laceration which is situated 2 1/4 inches below the vertex of the scalp and 1 1/2 inches to the right of the anterior midline.

3. EVIDENCE OF ABRASIONS:

The left lateral bridge of the nose has a 1/4 inch by 1/4 inch, inverted V type abrasion, 3 1/4 inches below the vertex of the scalp and 1 1/4 inches to the left of the anterior midline.

The dorsal aspect of the right hand just below the right index finger has a 3/8 by 1/8 inch abrasion, 4 3/4 inches below the tip of the right index finger.

4. EVIDENCE OF CONTUSION:

The left forehead has a 1 1/2 inch by 3/4 inch, faint, purple contusion, 1 1/4 inches below the vertex of the scalp and 1 inch to the left of the anterior midline. The underlying soft tissues have well-circumscribed, focal accumulations of blood.

There is purple ecchymosis involving the right medial canthus of the eye.

01-200

There is purple ecchymosis involving the left upper eyelid.
